

ABSTRACT

A control section with control keys arranged therein is formed, and upper and lower casings for storing a circuit, and holder capable of loading a button battery and sliding within said casing are respectively provided with stopping portion abutting each other when the holder is pulled out, and thereby, it is possible to obtain a remote-control transmitter which is free from dropping or losing of the holder.